[Written for the N. O. True Delta.]

The Birth-Day of Robert Burns.

BY MILLIE MAYFIELD.

"Measures are being taken in Mobile to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns."

What will New Orleans do in the matter?"—N. O. Picayune, January 2d.

Forget him not—the bard who thrilled a lay for And Knapp Syne.

And touched a chord whose tones have thrilled

Where'er Love's tendrils twine; Who wrought for Age's "frothy pow,"

With song's sweet silver flow, That halo that adorns it now—

"John Anderson, my Joe!"

And gave to immortality

The modest daisy's name, Weaving for weak humanity

A never-dying hymn— And sweetly told of love's faith

O'er Highland Mary's grave— O' honor him, for Poet sake!

The loving are the brave!

Shall he, who sang the praise of Doon, And Devon's "Maid and Clyde,"

Not reap the myrtle's leafless bough, O'er Mississipp's tide?

Yea, rolling seas have borne his songs, And sunny climes have heard;

And to all lands his fame belongs, Where thrill an English word.

All, all must own the magic spell

Of each old melody, For him, who sang the praise of Doon,

And Devon's "Maid and Clyde," Not reap the myrtle's leafless bough,

O'er Mississipp's tide? Yea, rolling seas have borne his songs,

And sunny climes have heard; And to all lands his fame belongs,

Where thrill an English word.

All, all must own the magic spell

Of each old melody, For him, who sang the praise of Doon,

Miscellaneous.

Chauncy Lewis, the Boy Soldier.

A boy of fifteen years of age, was standing before the open door of a Connecticut farm house with a little fencing piece upon his shoulder, while a womanly looking woman was standing in the doorway and gazing with moistened eyes upon him.

"Go, my son," she said, "but remember, when amid the smoke and the heat of the battle, the sentence in the heart of the mother, and the gaze of the father, have given you, 'the merciful shall obtain mercy.'"

"I will not forget it, mother," he replied, but our company is waiting, and now farewell."

"Good bye, my son,"—she kissed him as she spoke—and my life how has for two years years watched over the mother, protect the son!"

"A cloud of smoke hung over and enveloped the blood stained soil of Bunker's Hill. A noble looking man, in the uniform of an American General was slowly retreating with his face to the foe, and his report of a single rifle was heard, and Warren fell."

A young soldier—almost a boy—sprang towards him and lifted his head; at the same instant a giant grenadier in the British uniform, came charging at him with leveled bayonet.

To draw an old rusty horse pistol from his breast, present and fire it, at the approaching foe, was but the work of a moment. The grenadier fell, and the sword of Warren, which had fallen from his grasp, the boy-soldier ran and raised it over the red-coat to dispatch him.

But why does he pause when the sword is uplifted, and allow it to fall slowly to his side, and then turn away and strike not?

He remembers the injunction of that mother, and raising his hand to his forehead, he cries, "Remember my son, amid the smoke and heat of the battle, 'the merciful shall obtain mercy.'"

The tide of battle had swept like a whirlwind over the plains of Trenton. The British cavalry had ridden with irresistible force over a detachment of men and boys, forming a portion of the left wing of the American army, and among the dead and dying, lay a boyish soldier wounded, and with his right arm broken.

A mercenary party of Hessians, were ranging over the field murdering and plundering those who had fallen. They approached the boy-soldier, who dauntlessly awaited the impending death, and one of them drawing his sword was about to plunge it into the boy's side, when a gigantic red-coated grenadier rushed between the boy and the murderous Hessian and struck up the murder.

"Of fellowship, sincere, Across the wave to Scotia's land And wreath his honored brow."

TO CLARENCE.

By ANNA WOOD.

'Tis a dark November day, Clara, The wind is sighing low,

Sad and lone, as thou art sighing, But one short year ago,

My heart is very lone, Clara, Since thou hast gone away,

A chilly, dark November day, A chilly, dark November day.

Thou art sleeping in the grave, Clara— Within the narrow house,

Cold, cold will be thy wintry bed; November soon has come,

Model Speech in the Missouri Legislature.

We find the following in the reports of the proceedings of our Legislature on Friday last. It will at once occur to the reader of Mr. Pitt's speech that he is, as his name would imply, a venerable descendant of Lord Chatham.

His chief resemblance to that distinguished orator is said to consist in the possession of two legs, and a head with a nose on it. Read Mr. Pitt's speech.

St. Louis Democrat.

Mr. Pitt offered the following:

Resolved, That the Speaker be authorized to cause to be printed and posted one hundred bills, announcing the 8th of January, 1859.

Mr. Albany—I move to lay that resolution on the table.

Mr. Pitt. Mr. Speaker, this house passed resolutions, in relation to, in an appropriate manner, the 8th of January. This is a resolution simply asking that notice be given to the public of that day. We have declared an intention, and now, when we come to publish it, some gentleman is suddenly seized with the "retrenchment gripes," and squirms around like a long red worm on a pin hook. (Laughter.)

Godless keep continually talking about economy. I, myself, do not believe in tying the public purse with cobweb strings, but when retrenchment comes in contact with patriotism it assumes the form of "smallness." Such economy is like that of Old Skindin, who had a pair of boots made for his little boy, and when the boy grew up, he might last the longer. (Laughter.)

It is fraught with reminiscences the most stirring; it brings to mind one of the grandest events ever recorded in letters of living fire upon the walls of the temple of fame by the strong right arm of the god of war. On such occasions we should rise above party lines and political distinctions. I never thought under the banner of Old Hickory, but "by the eternal" I wish I had. (Laughter and applause.)

If the old war horse was here now he would not know his own children from the side of Joseph's coat of many colors—Whigs, Know-Nothings, Democrats, hard-shelled, scrupulous, and from Lincoln, Douglass and blatherites. I belong to no party; I am free, unbridled, unsaddled, in the political pasture. Like a bolted bull in fly time, I charge around in the high grass and fight my own flies. (Great laughter.)

Godless, let us show our liberality on patriotic occasions. Why, some men have no more patriotism than you could stuff in the eye of a hitting needle. Let us not squeeze five cents till the eagle on it squeals like a locomotive or an old maid. Let us print the bills and inform the country that we are as full of patriotism as are Illinois swamps of tadpoles. (Laughter.) I don't believe in doing things by halves. Permit me, Mr. Speaker, to make a point of quotation from one of our noblest authors:

"I love to see the grass among the red men, I love to see an old gray horse, for when he goes, he goes."

(Cavalier laughter.)

After the above speech, the House refused to lay the resolution on the table.

Rarey, The Horse Tamer.

The English papers contain the subjoined account of the manner in which Rarey tamed the celebrated horse

Crisper, that was known to be the most vicious and untractable animal in the kingdom:

Accompanied by one individual alone, a nobleman of undisputed nerve, temper and physical strength, Mr. Rarey proceeded to the encounter. As we have heard the story told, his intentions to his comrade were characteristic enough. "Whatever happens, my lord," said he, "speak of me as I speak of you, and until you see me down under this foot, and him carrying me."

This compact made, he resolutely walked into the arena, which consisted of a box divided by a half door of some four feet or more in height. Stepping quietly up to this barrier, he leaned his arm upon it so that it was just cleared by the trunk of the man along the top, and looked fixedly at the savage he intended to tame. Crisper, from whom muzzle, head stall, and all such impediments had been removed, we believe, by some mechanical arrangements—for none dared go near enough to touch him—made his usual dash at the intrepid stranger, to pounce on him as a cat would on a mouse. Rarey stood perfectly motionless, neither altering his attitude nor the expression of his countenance in the slightest degree. Thinking he had been eno by the arm, the horse seized and worried at the bar as if he would have bitten it through.

Again and again retiring for an impetus to the further corner, he rushed at the mysterious stranger, actually accomplishing in the uncontrolled violence of his rage. Rarey sustained these successive charges with the same sang froid that he had shown at the commencement of the engagement. At length, after more than an hour of this scene, with his frantic fury on one side, and his calm superiority on the other, the noble creature, Crisper, stood exhausted, dripping with sweat, and completely puzzled in his equine mind as to the properties of this figure, which he could no longer believe to be human, came quietly close to it, and true to his nature, warped as it was smelt at it, and touched it with his nose; then Rarey threw open the half door and walked boldly up to him. The last sentence speaks volumes. It was a trait out of the system, perhaps, so much as of the man. But what confidence the man must have had in system, thus to preserve his composure and equanimity in a position which, to every one but himself, would have been one of mortal danger. The "wait was now for the bird's tail, and when his new punishing method had been resorted to, and Crisper, converted into a quiet, docile, and particularly showy hack, had

Effect of the Panic of 1857 on the Production and Manufacture of Cotton.

The ample statistical returns with regard to the import, consumption and manufacture of Cotton during the last year, which are now appearing, throw much light on the influence which the commercial convulsion of 1857 has had on that great article. The importance of the subject will be a sufficient excuse for pointing it out.

The most marked effect of the sudden and violent fall in the price of cotton goods which followed that convulsion, has been to concentrate the production of both those articles in the hands of the richest and most skillful producers, and to drive weaker competitors out of the field. As far as the raw material is concerned, the cotton growers of the United States have taken a more decided lead than ever; and as far as the manufacturers are concerned, a similar lead has been taken by the manufacturers of this country.

On comparing the quantities of cotton imported into the United Kingdom in the two years, it appears that the aggregate quantities did not differ much, but that the sources of supply were very different. From the United States there was last year an increase of 381,500, whilst from British India there was a decrease of not less than 319,500 bales, and from Brazil of 62,700 bales. In Egyptian there is a small increase, which does not affect the result. Therefore, as relates to the supply of cotton, the effect has been to increase the import from the United States from 1,452,000 to 1,833,248 bales; but as relates to the East Indies to diminish the import from 859,508 to 560,987, and as relates to Brazil, from 105,614 to 106,227. We are thus more dependent than ever on the United States for our supply of cotton—the East India cotton growers having been almost driven out of the field at the time when he had begun to produce a really important addition to the American supply.

Another curious effect of the convulsion of 1857 has been given to the British manufacturer the supply of cotton which his rivals in the manufacturing districts of the United States would have had in the natural course of things. In 1857 the American manufacturer consumed 79,138 bales of cotton, whilst in 1858 he consumed only 52,200, thus leaving an extra supply of 26,938 for the British manufacturers. How much he will consume this year is quite uncertain; but there has only been one year since 1851 in which he did not consume upwards of 60,000 bales. That was 1854-5, when he consumed 563,500.

The effect of the temporary expansion of the American manufacturer of the field of competition, and of the weakening of continental producers, has been to give to the British manufacturer almost undisputed possession of the markets of the world, but more especially of the markets of the East. According to a valuable table published in the Manchester Guardian, it appears the number of packages sent to Bombay, which amounted in 1857 to 111,000, whilst in 1858 to 119,000, in 1857, which amounted to 118,000 in 1857, which increased to 194,000 in 1858, the increase in price in the former case being from one and one-half million sterling, whilst in 1858 it was 20 millions sterling, whilst that of the corresponding eleven months of 1857 was less than 27 millions.

Liverpool Mercury, 5th inst.

A HORSE TRAGEDY IN LIVERPOOL. CO., N. Y.—The Livingston Sentinel, published at Oswego, on the Genesee Valley, Canada, relates the circumstances of a horrible tragedy which occurred in that vicinity one night last week. A farmer hearing a noise in his stable, immediately dressed himself, and seizing a club proceeded to the scene of action; he found his stable door open and two men inside. He listened and heard one of the men say "the horse is in the stable," when he immediately stepped to the door and enquired "who was there?" This query was responded to on the part of one of the thieves by the presentation of a pistol to his breast, but without waiting for him to fire, the farmer dealt him a stout blow over the head which almost instantly killed him. He lived to say there are more men in the world than you think of.

GRAVES AND ANTI-GRAVES BAPTISTS.—We learn from the Brownsville (Tex.) Journal that a serious split has recently occurred in the Baptist church at Jackson, Tenn., growing out of an invitation extended some weeks ago by the Rev. Aaron Jones, the minister in charge, to Rev. J. R. Graves, (author of the iron wheel,) to a seat in his pulpit. Exceptions were taken by a portion of the members of the church who expressed themselves very freely in condemnation. The minister remonstrated with them, but finding them intractable, a meeting of the church was called for the purpose of investigation. A resolution was adopted by the Graves party declaring that they would no longer fellowship with the anti-graves, whereupon the latter seized the key of the church and took possession of the building. They nailed up the church and removed the bell. The Journal says a lawsuit between the parties will be the result, as both parties claim to be the church, and the building will not be used until the split is decided. The members seem to be about equally divided. The excitement was intense, and extended to the citizens, who had no connection with the church.

THE FAMILY OPPOSED TO NEWSPAPERS.—The man, that didn't take his country's power was in great haste. He brought his whole family in a two-horse wagon. He still believed that General Taylor was President, and wanted to know if the "Kankakeians" had taken Cuba, and if so, where they had taken it. He had sold his corn for thirty cents—the price being fifty-five—but on getting the deposit, the money, they told him that it was not his money. The only hard money he had was some three-cent pieces, and these some sharper had "run on him" for half dimes. One of the boys went to a blacksmith shop to be measured for a pair of shoes, and another mistook the market house for a church. After hanging his hat on a meat hook, he plucked out a nail, and then he went to the market house, an auctioneer, whom he took to be the preacher. He left before "meat was out," and had no great opinion of the "sarin."

One of the girls took a lot of "seed" to the post-office to trade them for a letter. She had a baby, which she carried in a "sugar-tough," stopping at times to rock it on the side walk. When it cried she stuffed its mouth with an old stocking, and sang "Barbara Allen." The oldest boy had sold two "coon skins," and was on a "bust." When last seen, he had called for a glass of "soda and water," and the stock soaking ginger-bread and making very faces. The shop-keeper mistaking his meaning had given him a mixture of soda and water, and it tasted strongly of soap. But he'd heard tell of soda and water, and he was bound to give it a fair trial, puke or no puke. Some "town feller" came in and called cotton—the East India cotton growers having been almost driven out of the field at the time when he had begun to produce a really important addition to the American supply.

Another horrible & sanguinary murder.—A Woman Killed by her Husband and Step-Daughter.—My friend's conduct of the Parties Suspected.

The "Chicago Plain," states that two miles from Covington, Kentucky, he knew, within the last two days, (the exact time is not known,) the scene of a tragedy almost unparalleled in horror. Parties acquainted with that, nearly opposite Cole's Garden, there is a small grove which has been kept for some time by a very tall man, a German, who besides his regular business, has taken to a living by bringing chips to this city for sale. His grove and dwelling were in the same building, a long, low frame, and in this the tragedy was committed, which came near remaining undiscovered, and of which full particulars cannot yet be given.

The grove and the house were kept closed for several hours yesterday, which so excited the suspicion of the neighbors, that finally Esquire Montebault entered, at the same time that a wagon was waiting at the door, evidently for the purpose of taking something away, the nature of which was certainly intended to be kept a secret.

A refusal was given to the "Squire," who, feeling sure that mischief was going on, burst open the door and proceeded to ascertain the cause of the strange conduct of the inmates, who seemed frightened, yet determined to prevent his search. He continued, however, to prosecute his purpose until, in one of the rooms, he came across a ruder scene, in which was lying the wife of the keeper of the grove, a bloody and mangled corpse—a spectacle full of ghastliness and horror.

Only a few minutes were required to secure the grove-keeper, and his step-daughter, whose clothes were stained with gore. Being questioned they sternly refused to answer, and were yesterday taken to Covington & lodged in jail, whence they will be removed to undergo an examination on Monday next.

We have known this man, John Thimble by name, more frequently called "Shanghai," for some time, and had always supposed him a peaceable citizen. It is likely the deed was committed in a moment of passion, and an effort made to conceal all traces of the crime. He and his wife were about the same age—between 30 & 35—and both natives of Germany.

Cin. Enquirer.

A Terrible Typo.—We enjoyed the pleasure, yesterday, of welcoming into our sunset, Col. Robert Carr, of Philadelphia, Pa, who is a representative of the "Art Preservative," & has attained the ripe age of 81 years. He is here on a visit to his niece, Mrs. J. N. Pender, and it is probable he will make this city his future home.

Col. Carr, notwithstanding he is an old gentleman, is upright, in carriage and can walk his thirty miles a day. He served as an errand boy to good old Benjamin Franklin, and remembers him well.

In the war of 1812, Col. Carr held the important office of Lieutenant Colonel in the 15th Regiment, U. S. Infantry, under Col. Pike, and was prominently mentioned for his gallantry in several important engagements with the British, and several times was subsequently in the State Legislature.

We were surprised to find that, at his advanced age, he could read, print, and write, and was very active in the use of his pen. He has never been known to be sick since 1798.

COTTON AT 15 CENTS.—A writer in the Charleston Courier says that 15 cents per pound for Cotton might have been obtained, by the exercise of a little firmness on the part of the planter and factor in holding out; and that 15 cents might yet be obtained for the remainder of the crop by the same policy. But he fails to estimate the loss, by such a policy, of weight of cotton, interest, and hazard of loss by fire, expense of storage, &c.; and especially the fact, that what would be gained in the price of this crop, might be lost on the spot, by hindering and embarrassing the manufacture of the article.

Correction.—A mistake occurred in first line of the third paragraph of our notice last week, of the molasses and sugar made by Dr. Edwards. It should have been 250 to 300 gallons of molasses to the acre.

See in another column the advertisement of Charles A. Pringle & Co., Wholesale Boot & Shoe House, of Charleston, S. C. This is a long established and justly popular house. Those who have dealt with them have been highly pleased with both quality and prices of articles; and speak in the highest terms of the fair dealing and accommodating disposition of the proprietors.

We hope our friends from this section may not fail to give them a call while in Charleston.

Our enterprising fellow-citizen, J. G. Nisbet, Esq., has recently erected Steam Mills, four miles north of this place, the machinery of which we understand, works admirably.

Persons wishing to have grinding done, are referred to his advertisement in another column.

Distressing Accident.—On Monday evening last, James Castleberry, a little girl, about nine years of age, step daughter of S. Sherbert, was accidentally burned to death by her clothes taking fire. Although her mother was in the room at the time, and her clothes torn off as quickly as possible, she was so badly burned that she lived only until about daylight next morning.

See in another column, advertisement of Mr. M. K. Kinsler, who is still engaged in the wagon making business, and prepared at all times to make or repair wagons, stock, plows, mowers, &c. We have heard Mr. Kinsler's work spoken of, as of very neat and substantial character, and doubt not he will be able to give the most entire satisfaction to his patrons.

The largest yet.—We were presented this week, with a turnip, from D. Hines East of this County, which weighed six pounds and a half. Who can beat it?

If you want Bargains, Don't fail to attend Elston & McGinn's Auction, on Thursday the 17th inst. Their entire stock of the soft without reserve, which will doubtless afford a better opportunity, than may occur for years, to obtain goods at very low prices.

Letter from Hon. J. F. Dowdell.—He Retires from Public Life.

In publishing the letter which appears below from Hon. James P. Dowdell, declining a re-nomination to Congress from the District which he so gallantly represented in 1855, and so nobly held in 1857, we should be doing injustice alike to our own feelings, and his true merits, were we to withhold the expression of our sincere regret at the determination on his part, which is to deprive the country of a conscientious and valued public servant, and the commonwealth of Alabama of the voice and counsel of one, who in the darkest hour of her political fortunes threw herself into the breach, and absolutely made his name familiar as household words, in every section of the country where constitutional doctrines are taught and accepted. During the years which have made up the term of service of Mr. Dowdell, as Representative from the third Congressional District of Alabama, he has succeeded by his respectful courtesy, his constant attention to the duties of his position, and his unexceptionable and unquestioned morality, in winning the esteem of his countrymen; while his perfect respect has been awarded him for his devotion to what he conceived the best interests of his country, and his quick ability to defend and maintain the rights of his particular section. His retirement from public life is Alabama's loss; for on the one hand, he has been a faithful and able representative of the people of the nation, and a better man has seldom resigned to a constituency the trust with which he had been confided.

Confidential.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11, 1859.

Fellow Citizens: It has been known, for some time, that I would not be a candidate for re-election to Congress. A public announcement of this determination is proper, that ample opportunity may be afforded for the selection of another to represent you.

In dissolving the relation which has so long and agreeably subsisted between us, my solicitude for your welfare, and devotion to your interests, will not be, in the slightest degree, diminished.

For the cordial support which I have received from a true and warm-hearted constituency, I shall ever feel grateful. And in this connection, I cannot forget my friends in the Old Seventh (now so well and ably represented by the Hon. J. M. Caldwell), who, by their faithful and untiring labors, have secured for me, and honored me with their confidence. My grateful acknowledgments to them are likewise tendered, and the recollection of their kindness will end only with life. Yet, whilst justly appreciating personal friendships, so gratifying to me, I am not unmindful of the fact that victory was achieved by the strength of the principles maintained, and the honor of the triumph belongs to the cause, not to the advocate.

To the past I will recur only to say, my record is with you. Conscious of having endeavored to do my whole duty, and to serve you faithfully, I shall be content to abide your judgment. Fidelity to you has been my controlling passion. And my representative duties have been pleasant, because I have ever felt I had the honor to represent a people who desired nothing but what was right, consistent with the Constitution, and in harmony with the welfare of our whole country.

In relating to private life, with the pleasing memories of past friendships, I should do injustice to myself not to say, that for those of you who have differed with me on political questions, I entertain no unkind feelings. What ever unpleasant things may have occurred in the heat of party conflicts, shall, on my part, be buried and forever forgotten. We all have common interests to cherish, and common institutions to improve. In view of the same, we should befriend each other, and have no differences of opinion, fellow-citizens, be ever characterized by moderation; let us strive to do what is right, and let us labor earnestly to promote that harmony in council and union in sentiment which only can preserve the integrity of our Government, or, falling in that, shelter us safely in the arms of civil commotions. May God incline the hearts of our people to love each other, and continue over them his fostering care and gracious providence!

With great respect,
Your obedient servant,
J. F. DOWDELL.

Thirty-Fifth Congress—2nd Session.

SENATE.

Washington, January 19.—The Senate met at the usual hour.

On motion of Mr. Pugh, the resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury to furnish to the Senate a list of all the articles exported to Cuba from the several ports in the United States during the past five years, and specifying the estimated value of the imports from that island during the same period, was adopted.

Mr. Jones introduced a bill for the re-division of the State of Iowa.

The joint resolution of Mr. Hale, for the restoration of officers displaced by the retiring law, was referred to the naval committee.

The invalid pension bill was considered, laid aside, and the Pacific railroad bill taken up. A long discussion upon the general features of the bill and its constitutional validity ensued, in which Messrs. Simmons, Benjamin, Davis and others participated. No new views were presented not hitherto recorded, and without taking a vote the Senate went into executive session, and afterwards adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The bill recognizing the survey of the great Gulf of Mexico Island, in the State of Louisiana, was passed.

Mr. Cobb, from the committee of public lands, reported back the bill for the relief of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, with an amendment. The amendment was agreed to, and the bill passed by yeas 135; nays 34.

Mr. Cobb also reported a bill to amend "an act granting rights of pre-emption to settlers upon the public lands of the United States."

Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment providing that from and after the first of May, 1859, no public lands should be exposed to sale under proclamation of the President until the same should be surveyed and the return thereon filed in the Land Office for at least ten years.

Mr. Jones, of Tennessee, moved to lay the bill on the table. Lost by yeas 49; nays 120.

The speaker laid before the House a message from the President of the United States, transmitting a report from the Secretary of State containing all the correspondence which has hitherto taken place between this government and the governments of Europe in reference to the acquisition of Cuba. Also, a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, in response to a resolution of the House, stating that there was no evidence to show that non-Frisco chaplains have been compelled to use the forms of the Episcopal Church.

The House then went into committee on the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill.

Mr. Keitt, of S. C., referred to the geographical position of Cuba, and said that in the hands of a strong naval power it could make the Gulf of Mexico a Mare Clausum. He thought we should not allow the island to remain in the hands of any power, strong or decrepit, which could control our commerce and menace our shores.

He quoted from Adams and Forsyth to show that its importance to our country had been recognized for many years. He dilated upon its fertility and productiveness, and went into statistics to show that our intercourse with Cuba was more extensive than that of any other power, and asked if every part of the Union was not interested in that? Her tariff was as high as that of Spain, and her starving population, exports to our islands 520,000 barrels, the United States 500,000 barrels. Remove the tariff and what would be the interest that every section of the Union would have in the commerce of Cuba?

The United States contribute one-half. Was not, then, that portion of the United States interested in the shipping business vitally and deeply interested in the acquisition of Cuba? It was only by its acquisition that they could strike the shackles from its commerce.

There were thousands of acquiring the island, one by purchase and the other by conquest. He did not believe the United States could purchase it; but because it was a source of large revenue to Spain, defraying all the expenses of her consular and diplomatic system on this continent; and secondly, because of the inveterate and traditional enmity of Spain.

The traditions of the period when the Spanish Empire was world-wide, protested against the sale; and what would be the risk of acquiring the island by war? Could it be done without a conflict with Great Britain and France? Both have guaranteed to Spain her sovereignty over the island of Cuba, and the gathering of their fleets in the waters of the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico indicated no disposition to recede from this guarantee.

With France we could understand it. Louis Napoleon, with the relentless ambition which marked his distinguished kinsman, wishes to establish a splendid colonial empire in the West Indies. To create and establish this it was necessary that the power of the United States should be crippled and humiliated.

With his hand upon the very throne of tropical empire, his army would be invincible, and his hand would clutch the scepter of universal commerce, not passive user, and when he shall have consolidated an empire, then the very power which he had made instrumental in crippling the United States would undergo subjugation.

The policy of Great Britain was only explicable upon the theory of subservience to France. He believed her diplomacy had placed her in the grasp of France, and she was now only moving at the dictation of Napoleon.

Mr. Ritchie asked whether the gentleman thought the United States had a right to take Cuba because they had a government that we did not approve of.

Mr. Keitt replied that he did not but he would say that the loss of Cuba would be a great calamity to our country, and that we should be careful not to lose it.

Mr. Lovejoy, of Illinois, moved to strike out the appropriations for all foreign ministers except the minister to Spain; which was rejected.

Mr. Colfax, of Indiana, offered an amendment to strike out the appropriation for the minister to Persia, which was adopted.

Mr. Curry submitted a similar amendment in regard to the Buenos Ayres mission. Carried.

Messrs. Stanton, of Ohio, Seales, of N. C., and Garrett, of Virginia, advocated a referendum in this branch of the public expenditure. The latter moved to strike out the appropriation for the mission to Rome; which was carried.

Mr. Curry made a similar motion in regard to Switzerland; which was adopted.

Mr. Barksdale, of Miss., thought we should have diplomatic representatives abroad, and pay them well, and that retrenchment and reform should commence elsewhere. The opposition manifested a great desire for economy, but were ready to vote for river and harbor bills, the French spoliation bill, and other extravagant expenditures.

Mr. Stanton replied by saying that the advertisement of the House was a demand for economy, and that the public expenditure was a demand for economy.

Mr. Barnett, of Kentucky, moved to strike out the appropriations for all missions except those to Great Britain, France, Spain, Russia, Mexico, China and Paraguay, and reduce the whole appropriation from $214,000 to $100,000.

After some debate of a conversational nature, the Committee rose without taking a vote.

Mr. Phelps moved again to go into Committee on the President's Message, and then take a recess till 7 p. m., which motion prevailed.

Evening Session.—The House assembled at seven o'clock. Mr. Humphrey, of Kentucky, made a speech against the republican sectional issues.

Mr. Scott advocated the Pacific Railroad bill, without regard to the route.

Mr. Andrews made a speech in support of the free trade.

Before nine o'clock the committee rose and the House adjourned.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE

EUROPE.

NEW YORK, January 22.—The Cunard steamship Europa, Capt. Linton, with Liverpool dates to Saturday, January 8, arrived at her wharf at 30 P. M.

Commercial Intelligence.

LIVERPOOL, CORRESPONDENT, Jan. 8.—The sales of Cotton for the week have been 84,000 bales, of which speculators took 1000 and exporters 8300 bales. The sales on Friday, the 7th January, were 7000 bales, of which speculators and exporters took 1000.

General Intelligence.

LOUIS NAPOLEON'S remarks to the Austrian Minister still exercised a depressing effect, notwithstanding the soothing efforts of the Moniteur advisers from Italy indicate rapidly approaching crisis.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, January 22.—The House was principally engaged today in legislation on private bills.

The bill to pay the losses sustained by citizens of Georgia and Alabama during the Creek war was defeated. The claims for the depreciations committed amounted to over one million dollars.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, January 23.—It is currently reported that high words were interchanged in the Executive session of the Senate on Friday, between Senators DOUGLASS, of Illinois, and FITCH, of Indiana. The dispute grew out of the confirmation of appointments in Illinois. It is rumored that DOUGLASS yesterday demanded a retraction from Mr. Fitch of language used by him in a speech on the floor of the Senate, and that the demand was complied with. Judge DOUGLASS' friends say that he intends to fight through the difficulties, if such a course be necessary.

Later from California.

NEW ORLEANS, January 23.—The steamship Quaker City, with 108 passengers, and California dates to January 15, has arrived from Minatitlan, whence she sailed January 17. The Golden Age, which left San Francisco January 5, had 170 passengers, and $230,000 in specie for New York, with $67,000 for Europe via Panama. Business was dull in California, and money scarce. The Legislature was organized on the 14th January, and W. C. Stratton elected Speaker. The Leopolton Democrats have a large majority.

Kansas Matters.

Lawrence, Kan. T., January 20.—The outlook, Montgomery, has given himself up for trial. Brown, another fractious outlaw, has left the Territory.

New York, January 24.—

The cotton market is buoyant, and holders demand an advance. The sales sum up 200 bales. Flour is buoyant, and sales of $1,000,000. Wheat is firm, and sales of 250,000 bushels.

Bobbie Cotton Market.

MOBILE, Jan. 22.—The sales on Friday were 2500 bales; Middling 111c. The sales of the week sum up 25,000 bales, and the receipts reach 34,500 bales, against 18,500 bales at the same time last year. The stock on hand is 187,000 bales.

MOBILE, January 12.—

Sales of 2500 bales; Middling dull at 111c. 111c.

New Orleans Cotton Market.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—The sales of Friday were 2000 bales; Middling 113c. Prices are irregular and business dull, owing to unfavorable weather. The sales of the week sum up 25,000 bales, and the receipts reach 34,500 bales. The exports of the week have been 52,000 bales. The increased receipts at all the ports put up 948,250 bales, and the stock on hand at this point is 426,900 bales.

Savannah Cotton Market.

SAVANNAH, January 21.—The market is quiet and unchanged, and the sales light.

Augusta Cotton Market.

AUGUSTA, January 21.—The sales are light, and the market quiet and unchanged.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP

ARABIA.

Cotton Declined.

HALIFAX, Jan. 28.—The sales of the week amounted to forty-five thousand bales. A decline of 1 had taken place in the cotton market, and all qualities had slightly declined. Holders were pressing on the market.

Manchester advances favorable.

Money market decidedly more stringent. Consols 95 1/2.

FURTHER BY THE ARABIA.

HALIFAX, Jan. 23.

Disputes continue on the continent. The Warlike rumors are still circulated, but the panic has sensibly abated particularly in London.

The Paris Bourse has shared the improvement, but still fluctuating.

Senate the Pacific Railroad Bill was amended and it will be presented to vote to-morrow. The bogus Indiana Senators have been refused a seat on the floor of the Senate, during the time their claim for seats are pending.

In the House the Civil and Diplomatic Appropriation Bills were under discussion, and the Southern members took strong grounds against the appropriation for the maintenance and education of the Rebo negroes.

The Northern Democrats and Republicans took the opposite side, and sustained the President in his course in the affair. Mr. DOWNEY, of Alabama, moved to strike out a clause in the bill appropriating seventy-five thousand dollars, to be used by the President in suppressing the slave trade, which caused rather a sectional discussion.

OBITUARY.

DIED at his residence in Calhoun city, on the 27th of Jan. last, Mrs. Sarah Weir. Mrs. Weir was born on the 5th Oct. 1818, in Chester Dist. S. C. and was the daughter of Vincent and Elizabeth Brown. She was married to David Weir on the 8th Sep. 1831. She attended herself to the Presbyterian Church about 5 years before her death and led the life of a devout and exemplary christian. In all the different relations of life, she performed the duties devolving on her with faithfulness. She was a devoted wife, a kind and affectionate mother, a good neighbor and an humble christian. About 7 years since, she lost her husband, and the care of a numerous family devolved on her. Her constant and example yet remain with her children so that "being dead she yet speaketh." Her death has made a great void in that household, yet her children though they grieve for her loss, yet they can look up to Heaven and see it shining sweetly on them in the day and in the silent watches of the night continually saying "Come up hither." Will not her children to whom she was so endeared strive to meet her in yonder bright world by imitating the example of her faith and piety?

"When soon or late you reach that coast
Of peace's rough ocean driven,
May you receive a warm ever lost,
A family in Heaven."

STATE OF ALABAMA.

CALHOUN COUNTY.

Court of Probate, for Calhoun County

Alabama, Special Term, Feb.

1st, A. D. 1859.

This day came James Lawrence, Administrator of Joseph Lawrence, deceased, and filed his petition in writing, representing that his intestate died seized and possessed of the following described land, to-wit: Lot No. 6, being the north half of the south west fourth of section 16, township 18, Range 4—that the said Joseph W. Lawrence, left the following heirs, (viz.) Martha Chandler, widow of Walter Chandler, and resides in Montgomery county, Alabama; Mary Plonkins, wife of L. E. Plonkins, who resides in Winston county, Alabama; James Lawrence, petitioner, over twenty-one years of age; Henry Lawrence, Elizabeth Lawrence and Robert Lawrence, Catherine S. Lawrence, Sarah J. Lawrence, all of whom are minors and reside with their father, Robert Lawrence, sr. in the county of Hall and State of Georgia; also Lydia Banks, wife of N. H. Banks, and Susanah Hester, wife of John Hester, who are over 21 years of age and reside in Hall county, Georgia. He further alleges, that a fair, beneficial, and equitable division of said land, among said heirs at law of said estate, cannot be made without a sale thereof, and asks an order and decree of court authorizing him to sell said land, for the purpose of division among said heirs.

It is therefore ordered by the court that Monday the 14th day of March next, 1859, be set for the hearing and determining upon said petition, and that notice thereof be given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a weekly newspaper printed and published in the town of Jacksonville, in said county, forty days, prior to said day as a notice to the aforesaid non resident heirs, as well as to all other persons concerned, to be and appear at a regular term of said court to be holden at the court house of said county, on said Monday the 14th day of February next, 1859, and defend against said petition if they think proper.

A SONG.

"The Bill-Boy of the Slashes."

"Gone is the light of the eagle eye,
The eloquent tongue—it is mute."

Like an angel of Wrath,
With black winged angel,
He swept through the halls of Debate,
He plead for the Union,
And like a comet he hurried
A mass on Seward, the great!

"Thy vocation is gone!"
Said the proud passing lip,
And his finger pointed straight at his foe,
Who now, crouching pale,
Felt his craven heart fail,
And faintly less seemed to grow!"

Now the shadow of Washington
Fits to and fro—
Looms up on the high ghastly wall,
He hears o'er his people—
The temple he built—
And the speaker pereth it all.

See! See the lofty one,
The broad kindly brow,
Towering high in the strife of debate,
Now where may you find him,
And covards turn pale,
But he roweth the ship of the State!

Once a young man he came,
He had loved his life,
As he strayed thro' the halls of Debate,
Yet his lip proudly curled
As the person moved
For he carried the flag of his State!

Yet, for "Union" he plead,
And each vivid thought,
With the strife of genius that came,
Seemed instant with fire,
For his eloquent ire
Was rose in an ocean of flame!!

Park, dark will be the day,
When the memory of Clay
Is buried in the "West of the Tree,"
Who legend told tell—
Fire then we know well,
Our freedom a fossil will be!

FALL OF AN AEROLITE.—The following description of the fall of an aerolite is given in a letter dated the 9th of December, from Clarac, a village in the neighborhood of Toulouse, France:

About seven o'clock this morning, we heard a terrific explosion, similar to the heavy sound of a heavy clap of thunder, which continued, at least, five minutes. At the same time we observed a million of sparks in the sky, followed by a black cloud, which greatly astonished us. While we were thus gazing at the heavens, an enormous stone of a nature unknown in this country, black and burning, fell from the sky, and was seen

They found, on breaking it, that it was perfectly calcinated. The weather

A NEWSPAPER EDITOR.—A newspaper editor must, like the poet, be born to his calling, as in the majority of instances, no amount of training will fit a person for such a post, unless he have a natural taste and aptitude for that description of literary labor; for although many persons are able to write "leaders" or "literary articles," for newspaper, few can be entrusted with its editorial control, few can scent out the libel which lurks in almost every communication, few can distinguish the report intended to please the speaker instead of informing the nation, and the letters written to serve private interests instead of public ends; still fewer will consent to abuse the bird's bill.

Successful editors have not been great authors, but men of good common sense and their good common sense has taught them to write but little for themselves, but to read, judge, select, and edit.

vised a number of years to studying and experimenting. After long trials and experiments and consulting the best authors and most scientific chemists and physicians of the day, I have at last succeeded in making a Medicine that will recommend itself to every one who studies its combination. Every infected person, whether it be from a chancre or glance, from the analysis given gratis, which is composed of the very best remedies for external use in the Materia Medica.

Every person who can read may know its composition; its effects are also well known.
One hundred thousand Bottles made according to this prescription have been sold and found to be perfectly successful, giving a uniform and satisfactory. Read the analysis made by one of the most popular and scientifically Chemists in the United States.

ANALYSIS
Porter's Oriental Life
LINIMENT,

MADE BY
C. W. WRIGHT, M.D.
Professor of Chemistry in the Kentucky School of Medicine, December, 1858.

To Dr. P. PORTER:

Sir—The ingredients which enter into composition of the Preparation known as "Porter's Oriental Life Liniment," which was let with me for qualitative chemical analysis, were found on examination to be composed of the following ingredients:

Potassa,	Gum Camphor,
Eucalyptus,	Oil of Resin,
Alumina,	Naphtha,
Fluorine,	Essence of Potash,
Stannic Acid,

All of the above ingredients, with the exception of Carbonate of Potassa are employed in the composition of this liniment.
This preparation is no less than a secret,
have no hesitancy in stating that it is a satisfactory and efficient remedy for the diseases with which it is commonly used.

Respectfully, C. W. WRIGHT.

Hundreds of physicians use and prescribe Porter's Oriental Life Liniment, believing that they have never met with a more effective in which it is recommended. They know its composition and prescribe it with as much confidence as to its effects, as they do to any other remedy.

The following are a few of the many eminent and influential physicians who have used Porter's Oriental Life Liniment, and testify to its efficacy in the treatment of the various diseases of the Oriental Life
Liniment.

Dr. J. B. Keefe, of Jefferson county, Ky.
Dr. J. W. Bondell, of Louisville, Ky.
Dr. Bruce, of Louisville, Ky.
Dr. J. H. Junon, of Morganfield, Ky.
Dr. S. M. Stowell, of Ohio Valley, Tenn.
Dr. J. W. Bondell, of Louisville, Ind.
Dr. R. F. Parker, Liberty, Ky.
Dr. K. J. Perryman, Boston, Ky.
Dr. T. Terrell, Fayette, Ky.
Dr. C. H. Harris, Charleston, Ky.
Dr. J. W. Helge, Colemanville, Ky.
Dr. W. C. Olds, Naples, Ind.

The Oriental Life Liniment will be found
of great benefit in Prostrations; Rheumatism; Cuts; Bruises; Sprains &c. See Put up in Bottles of 1/2, 1, and 2 lbs. Sold by all Druggists and Country Merchants throughout the U. S.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,) CLARENCE GUNNY,)
Court of Probate for Calhoun County,
Ala., Special Term, January
12th, A. D. 1859.

THIS day came Wm. V. Little, and presented a paper in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Wm. McMichael, deceased, and asked that the same be proven, established, and admitted to record as such. Said Little represents, that Beverly M. McMichael is the widow of said decedent, and that James H. McMichael, Elizabeth Heath, Martha A. Cumby, wife of Pleasant A. Cumby, John A. McMichael, Mary Renfro, wife of Daniel Reelfro, deceased, Sarah McElroy, wife of ——— McElroy, Richard P. McMichael, Ida McMichael, Emily McMichael and Joseph H. McMichael, are the children and heirs at law of said decedent—but she said Mary Renfro, Sarah McElroy and Richard P. McMichael are transients, residing in the State of Texas, beyond the limits of the State of Alabama. Thereupon, it is ordered by the court, that the 12th day of February next, be set aside for the Probate of said Will, & that notice thereof be given by publication in the Jacksonville Herald once a week, until the 1st day of March next, a notice, for thirty days prior to said day as notice to the aforesaid heirs at law of the said decedent, as well as to all other persons concerned to be and appear at a Special Term of said Court to be holden at the Court House of said County, on Saturday the 12th day of February next, 1859, and shew cause, if any they have, why said will should not be proven, established, and admitted to record, as the last will and testament of the said Wm. McMichael, deceased, if they think proper.
